HOW CLIENTS WERE CONTACTED

Your assistant conducted a fully manual, one-to-one phone outreach campaign across 937 client records over 7 weeks — no automation, no bulk messaging, no shortcuts. Every contact was a real conversation or a genuine attempt. The heaviest push came on March 25 (110 calls in a single day), triggered directly by the regional conflict escalation, with a second major sweep on April 14. Activity tapered through May as the reachable pool was exhausted — but critically, 206 records (22% of the database) were never contacted at all.

THE VISIBLE TREND

The data tells a story that is far more reassuring than the noise suggests. Three clear signals emerge:

- 1 — The market is holding. Of everyone reached, 75.9% confirmed they are still in Dubai. The conflict spooked people, but it did not empty the city. Your core client base stayed put.
- 2 — The summer exodus is real but manageable. Only 42 clients confirmed they are currently abroad — mostly UK and France-based expats heading home seasonally. This is a predictable, annual pattern; the conflict simply added anxiety on top of it.
- 3 — The biggest problem is internal, not external. 152 phones were off (the conflict signal — people who likely left), but 206 records were never called. That is not a market problem. That is an untapped opportunity sitting inside your own spreadsheet.

CALL TO ACTION — 3 PRIORITIES ONLY

1	CALL THE 206 UNTOUCHED CLIENTS — THIS WEEK
	No strategy needed. No budget required. Just call them. These are people who were in your database and were never approached. Some will book immediately. This is your fastest, cheapest revenue opportunity right now.
2	SEND A PERSONAL WHATSAPP TO EVERY RETURNING CLIENT
	You have 5 clients returning imminently and 4 more within 1–3 months. That is 9 warm leads you already know by name. One message, one offer — "Welcome back, your studio is ready." Do this before they rebook somewhere else.

LOCK IN YOUR 236 IN-DUBAI CLIENTS BEFORE JULY

3

Stop chasing the phone-off list. Redirect that energy to the clients who are here right now. A loyalty pack, a multi-session discount, or a summer bundle locks in revenue before the real slowdown hits. Retention is cheaper than acquisition — always.

BOTTOM LINE

Your studio is in a stronger position than the fear suggests. The conflict created anxiety, not exodus. Summer is the real threat — and it is entirely manageable if you act on your own database before spending a single dirham on ads.
